Hawks parade & rally route

Thursday's parade—set to begin at 10 a.m.—will begin at Washington and Racine and proceed east along Washington to Desplaines, then south on Desplaines to Monroe and east on Monroe to Michigan. A rally will be held at about 11 a.m. at Soldier Field. Free tickets were quickly snapped up from ticketmaster.com on Wednesday. For those who didn't get a ticket, Soldier Field will have screens in the south parking lot. In a news release, the city said motorists should "expect delays" and warned revelers "there will be zero tolerance for drinking on the public way."

COSTLY CUP?

WORKPLACE PRODUCTIVITY LIKELY TO TAKE HIT BECAUSE OF HAWKS WIN, FESTIVITIES

By Matt Lindner | FOR REDEYE

The Blackhawks' Stanley Cup Championship win Monday and subsequent parade and rally to come Thursday have been a boon for civic morale but likely horrible for workplace productivity.

Job outplacement firm Challenger, Gray & Christmas says the average American earns about $4.16 every 10 minutes, or $24.96 per hour. If every worker in the Chicago metropolitan area—there are about 4.5 million—blew off work or spent the day talking about the game, it would cost $112.3 million per hour, or $898.6 million for the entire eight-hour workday.

Challenger, Gray & Christmas spokesman James Pedderson said he didn't have an exact figure as to how much businesses have lost because of a drop in productivity.

"There definitely will be an impact, particularly among hourly paid workers who might call in 'sick,'" he said. "In salaried positions, where output is not measured in hours worked or widgets produced, it's almost impossible to measure."

The win coming on a Monday might have been even more detrimental to the workweek.

"The start of the week is typically when the heavy lifting gets done," Pedderson said. "Productivity and workloads tend to taper off as the week goes on, especially in the summer when many workers take Fridays off or have shorter hours in order to enjoy long summer weekends."

Wednesday brought with it the distraction of tickets for the Stanley Cup rally at Soldier Field hitting the market at noon. Hours later, #Blackhawksrally was trending on Twitter, with many people trying to score tickets and others taking to social media to complain about Ticketmaster—which was in charge of dispensing the free tickets—and people trying to sell the free tickets on Craigslist.

With the parade set to kick off Thursday morning and the rally at Soldier Field to follow, a quick check of social media seems to indicate that many Chicagoans will be less than focused on their jobs during the workday.

Victory for Emanuel

Call it the hunger games.

Bets were placed between two cities that their respective hockey teams would be victorious in the Stanley Cup Final. On the table was the best food Chicago and Tampa Bay have to offer.

So, Mayor Emanuel better work up an appetite. Thanks to the Blackhawks' win over the Tampa Bay Lightning, he's got quite the feast coming his way: a case of Cigar City Invasion pale ale, which we could only assume would taste best if chugged from the Stanley Cup; 122 Cuban sandwiches; and the original "1905" salad from Columbia Restaurant. The wager also included a donation to One Summer Chicago, a violence prevention program for at-risk youth.

Tampa Bay's Mayor Bob Buckhorn reached out to Emanuel to congratulate Chicago after Game 6 and will be making good on his bet with a shipment expected early next week, Emanuel spokeswoman Kelley Quinn said.

Tips for the home office

The Second City
NETWORK
Liz Kozak
» @SecondCity
Netwk

Increasingly popular flexible work models allow more employees than ever to brag that they get to work from home, when really, companies are saving themselves from having to work out arguments over who gets the office with the exposed brick and view of the river/a tree/Portillo's.

Want to become the best employee most of your company has never met? Here are some work-from-home tips to read over right now. During the workday. While you're still in sweatpants.

Make assumptions about what someone's last email actually meant

"Sure."
Did Sheila's one-word response mean, "Of course"? Or did it mean, "I hate you so, so, so much, and every single thing you ask of me irritates beyond belief, so therefore I will place a pox on you and all your future generations. Via Dropbox."

When in doubt, assume the latter. Counter with the most adorably curt of email replies: "thx." Nothing says, "I'm so busy and important that I simply must abbreviate a one-syllable word meant to show my appreciation" like "thx." Stew for months about this exchange.

Over-email/under-reply

You: Sending that file in a sec...

You: Here's the file!

You: Hey, just making sure you got the file?

You: Did that file open up OK for you?

Co-worker: Yep. Can you also please send it to me as a PDF?

You: *crickets* *at Starbucks* *takes nap* *watches HGTV* *thinks about going to gym* *updates Facebook cover pic with scanned high school yearbook page*

It's always best to be very accessible, except when someone actually needs or wants to hear from you. This assures that you never get too annoying. No one wants to get too many emails! Or have their invoices processed. Ugh, paperwork.

Avoid meeting face-to-face

When you're at the rare work function that requires legit human interaction, if you recognize someone from their social media profile pics, avoid him or her at all costs. This goes double for individuals with whom you have a friendly email relationship and could possibly get along with IRL. Your witty repartee regarding the Johnson report might be stymied and devolve into a series of emoji (the boring ones) if you have nothing to talk about.

Prepare to engage in workplace warfare

If even the slightest mistake occurs that you are not responsible for, always conclude that it was an intentional personal attack against you and your personal brand. Proceed accordingly by whatever means necessary. No matter what, never pick up the phone and say, "Hey, I think we got off on the wrong foot. Can we talk really quickly to make sure our communication is better moving forward?" That will only serve to make you look weak.

Now go put on your dress-up sweatpants and get ready to take on the world—from the safety of your apartment that you can't afford anymore. LIZ KOZAK IS THE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF OF THE SECOND CITY NETWORK.

Close call at Midway under investigation

By Jon Hilkevitch | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Confusion over similar-sounding flight numbers is under investigation as the cause of a close call between two airliners taking off on intersecting runways at Midway Airport, an aviation source said Wednesday.

A Southwest Airlines plane, Flight 3828, was cleared for takeoff on runway 31 Center on Tuesday night, according to the Federal Aviation Administration. As Flight 3828 began its takeoff roll, Delta Air Lines Flight 1328 also began rolling on runway 4 Right without clearance from the Midway tower, according to the preliminary FAA investigation.

Both planes were operating at full takeoff power, which is standard procedure on the Southwest Side airport's relatively short runways, the source said. The controller directing both planes spotted the Delta plane's movement and ordered the Delta pilots to stop immediately, the FAA said. The Southwest pilots also hit the brakes.

Before the incident, a Midway ground controller had notified both pilots about the similar and potentially confusing flight numbers of the two planes waiting to depart, and he advised the pilots to listen carefully to radio calls, according to tapes of the incident.

A Southwest Airlines boarding gate at Midway

On the transmission, the tower controller is heard clearing Southwest Flight 3828 for takeoff. But when the Southwest pilot radios back confirmation, his voice is obscured, or "stepped on," by a dual transmission, apparently from Delta Flight 1328. During a dual transmission, each pilot hears only some of what is being communicated.

A second dual transmission then occurs, and seconds later, as the Southwest plane is accelerating down runway 31 Center, the Delta plane is also on a takeoff roll on intersecting runway 4 Right, sources said.

A controller abruptly yells, "Stop, stop, stop, stop!" A pilot says, "Aborting," and another pilot announces, "SWA stopping."

After both planes safely make an emergency stop short of the intersection, the Southwest pilot is heard on the tape asking the control tower whether he mishandled his takeoff clearance. "Were we the ones cleared for takeoff?"

The controller responds, "Yes, sir, you were. You were doing what you were supposed to be doing."

"Delta took our—Delta was rolling also?" the pilot asks.

"He took your call signs," the controller says.

Delta released a statement saying it was "fully cooperating with the FAA's investigation."

It wasn't clear how many passengers were on the Delta plane. The Southwest plane was carrying 139 passengers and five crew members, according to Southwest officials.

EXPRESS LINES

» A Cook County Corrections officer is facing up to five years in prison after a judge found him guilty of felony aggravated battery and two counts of official misconduct in an unprovoked attack on an inmate—caught on video—at the jail on the Southwest Side.

» Drinkers at Navy Pier will be able to tote their beverages indoors at the popular tourist attraction, thanks to a measure OK'd by the City Council on Wednesday; until now, people could only buy beer and other alcoholic beverages and carry them around outside—provided they didn't leave the pier.

» It's all aboard for pets on some Metra trains this summer: The commuter rail agency is going to allow small critters in cages to ride with their owners on a trial basis from July 4 to Oct. 4, but only on one line, the Rock Island, and only on weekends.

IT'S OK, SAY IT.

Say the D-word. Dynasty. D-Y-N-A-S-T-Y. Hawks fans have a right to say it, a diplomatic immunity type of hockey bragging right. Not just because they're the only team to win three Stanley Cups in the salary cap era, but also for reaching the Western Conference Final five times out of the past seven years. And because their core group of players likely consists of at least four future Hall of Famers.

But don't take RedEye's word for it. Wayne Gretzky, the Great One, said the Hawks are "absolutely" a dynasty during an interview with NHL Network Radio on Tuesday. The greatest player to ever play the game, who had a dynasty of his own before the salary cap era, may know a thing or two about hockey.

So, enjoy this time. Take a personal day to go to the parade, and track the Cup's whereabouts. It's no longer just the golden age of Blackhawks hockey, it's a dynasty of relentless excellence.

SCOTT KING IS A REDEYE
SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.
@SCOTTKINGMEDIA

Coach Joel Quenneville and several Blackhawks players reflected on what the team has accomplished.

ARE THE HAWKS A DYNASTY NOW AFTER WINNING THREE CUPS IN SIX YEARS?

Coach Joel Quenneville
(3 Cups with Hawks)

I'll defer to [NHL Commissioner] Gary [Bettman] on that. [Laughs.] [Editor's note: Bettman called the Hawks a dynasty when presenting the Cup on Monday.] I think last year, getting to the conference final and losing in a Game 7, the ifs and whats and buts—but I think at the same time, we like our team. We think there's a lot to be excited about.

We've had different teams along the way in these six years. At the end, it's a fun bunch. I think the core group who've been around for three of them lead the charge. I'm happy for that group. But the group that won it here this year will share in a great memory and great experience and a tough battle.

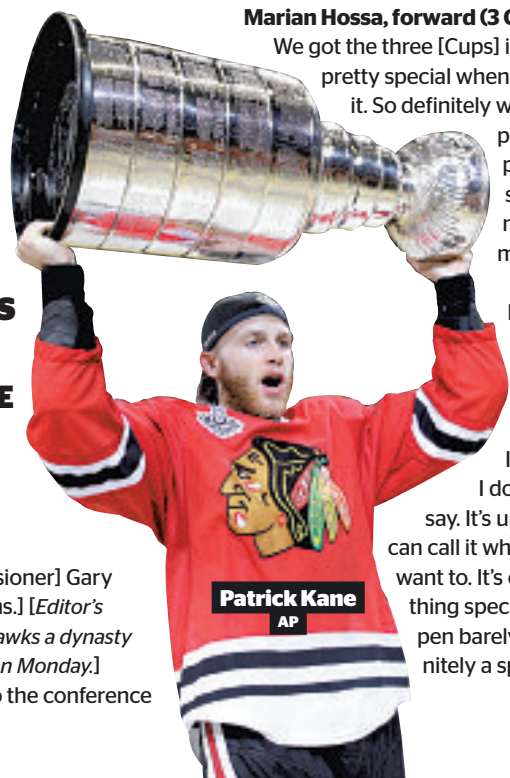

Marian Hossa, forward (3 Cups with Hawks)

We got the three [Cups] in six years ... it's pretty special when somebody says it. So definitely we are pleased and privileged to be part of it, and when somebody says "dynasty," it means so much.

Niklas Hjalmarsson, defenseman
(3 Cups with Hawks)

It's a great feeling. I don't know what to say. It's up to you guys. You can call it whatever you guys want to. It's obviously something special; it doesn't happen barely at all. We're definitely a special team.

Patrick Kane

HOW GOOD DOES THIS CUP FEEL?

Corey Crawford, goaltender
(2 Cups with Hawks)

Everyone works hard in that room together. To win another one together is great, man. Childhood dream. You never really think when you're a kid you have a chance, then now being able to win it twice is awesome.

YOU'VE PLAYED A LOT OF HOCKEY TO HAVE THIS AMOUNT OF SUCCESS. IS IT EQUALLY GOING BY FAST?

Patrick Kane, forward (3 Cups with Hawks)

It's amazing how fast these years go by. I think going into next year, it will be my ninth season, which is crazy to think about. Then you see the guys getting drafted out of this year, I think there [are players born in 1997] or something, you know. Here you are, you thought you were young as [someone born in 1988], you're almost 10 years caught up to players getting drafted now.

So it's amazing how fast it's flying by, but to be 26 and have three Stanley Cups right now is pretty unbelievable for me. It's something you dream about and look forward to when you're younger. But to say that it would actually happen three times, you're probably fooling yourself. So very happy with where I'm at in my career now.

Duncan Keith, defenseman,
2015 Conn Smythe Trophy winner
(3 Cups with Hawks)

It seems like every year it just flies by, goes by faster and faster. I don't know why that is, but you know, the years just keep piling on and going by. I think that reinforces the fact that you only have one career, you want to make the most of it. You want to win while you have the chance.

I think that was a part of why we put that pressure on ourselves this year. I think just like this year, next year will be the same thing in the sense that, like I said, you only have one career and time goes by. You want to make the most of every opportunity every year you have.

WE HAD TO ASK

RedEye picked the brains of Blackhawks fans to discover why they enjoy hockey.

» What will you tell people in 10-20 years about the core players on the Blackhawks now?

I would say that this team turned Chicago into a hockey town. If you told me 10 years ago that Chicago would be a bigger hockey town than any other sport, I would have told you that you're insane.

—Rich Freidag, 31, Chicago

» Who's your favorite Hawks player and why?

I love Corey Crawford. I always root for the underdog, and I feel so terrible that everyone always has such a bad opinion of him. He's such a great goalie. I feel like he's been carrying us through a lot this season.

—Sara Moist, 26, Itasca

» Why is this team so fun to watch?

The way they understand each other on the ice, by giving looks. They know each other so well, and they play so well together.

—Armando Lopez, 30, Chicago

» What makes it so fun to be a Hawks fan?

It does help that the stadium is packed and everyone is high-fiving each other. They're young guys, the whole team is young. I'm following kids that are six, seven years younger than me, and I like them. I think it's like the Bulls' status in the '90s.

—Carmelo Giangrande, 30, Algonquin

1	Let's have your best Blackhawks parade advice.	Watch for renegade Tampa Bay fans.	Everybody go online and order "Love Hossa" T-shirts!	Drink and drink a lot.	Public urination is most definitely still illegal.	"WOOOOOOOO BLACKHAWKS CHAMPS UNSTOPPABLE YEAHHHHH!" Sorry, what?
2	The Hawks' championship rally will be at Soldier Field. Good choice?	Bad choice. That place is for losing teams.	Yes! I don't see any other championship rallies happening there. I'm looking at you, Bears.	It's not as if the Bears are celebrating in it. Might as well get some positive use out of it.	When I hear "world-class" celebration, it's the only place that comes to mind.	No, we'd never want Jay Cutler to think we don't like him...
3	What would a Stanley Cup party at Patrick Sharp's house be like?	Like an EDM concert where Tiësto took over the iPod jams.	I can only imagine everyone's dancing to "Party in the USA."	Oh, God. I hope it's a sex party.	So exclusive that invites were only sent to his teammates' wives and girlfriends.	Actually still waiting on the invite, thanks for rubbing it in.
4	The next time Duncan Keith puts on a pair of skates...	...he'll be in the backseat of a limo scuffing up the carpeting.	...he'll be good to go.	...he'll be playing Elsa in "Frozen on Ice."	...Duncan will have become the most popular baby name in Chicago.	...he'll be the same brilliant badass he always is. Don't even try suggesting otherwise.
5	What will Chicago fans watch now that the Stanley Cup Final is over?	"Frasier."	It's baseball season, baby!	Reruns of "Frasier."	If you're a fan of fights and facial hair, may I suggest "The Bachelorette"?	Recordings of the series.

BETTER THAN EVER

South Loop bar Villains is back, and the burger—and beer list—is worth the trip

BURGER TIME

The Great Burgerelli

» gburgerelli
@tribune.com

Burgers and beer are my reason for being. My idea of the perfect date night involves only a frosty glass of beer, the perfect patty and yours truly. This is how I, The Great Burgerelli, first found myself at the now-defunct Villains in the South Loop many years ago. And what I found at the time was an excellent medium-sized patty with charred edges and fine ale pours of Lagunitas Brown Shugga' and Surly

Darkness. It was a very sad day indeed when the original Villains closed in 2012; I have attempted to drown my sorrows with many fine ales and burgers since. But, to my delight, a few weeks ago, I spied a new Villains just down the street from the old location in Printer's Row. And the answer to my prayers had arrived.

The story and the scene

The current incarnation of Villains includes consulting general manager Marco Silva, who was involved with the old location. Most of the original ownership and team, however, has dispersed elsewhere. Silva brought aboard chef Dennis Stover, who has quite the pedigree, having spent time working with chefs Paul Virant and Paul Kahan and most recently running the kitchen at Hot Chocolate. The old Villains was quite divey indeed; the new Villains is rustically elegant with just a tiny touch of edge, thanks to the skull wallpaper and rugged custom metal dining chairs.

Villains

730 S. Clark St. 312-583-0283

The chairs, in particular, have a splendid backstory. "Marco really liked this metal-worker, and he wanted him to make chairs for the new location. He kept calling the guy but couldn't get a hold of him," Stover said. "So, Marco camped outside his workshop in Pilsen for a couple days, even sleeping in his car. One morning around 5 a.m., he saw the guy coming in, and he got out and commissioned the guy."

The menu

While the old Villains was utterly burger-centric, the new Villains serves just one single burger ($15) amidst a smattering of New American dishes. "I eventually want to get to a place where if it's not served locally or it's seasonal, I don't do it. There's no better way,"

Stover said. While I, The Great Burgerelli, can live on burgers alone, I did sample a few non-burger plates. My favorite was a slice of pork belly ($14) that ate like a ham steak flanked by sweet bits of honeycomb, charred asparagus and verdant farm peas that tasted like the very essence of spring. I would venture to say that Stover's style is much akin to the great work of his mentors Kahan and Virant, and I look forward to exploring more in the future.

The burger

But let's not be foolish, dear friends. I was here for the burger, and Villains' patty is a fine one—thick, juicy, medium-rare and displaying a slight mineral flavor. Made from chuck, brisket and the trim of 30-day dry-aged sirloin from Fairbury, Ill.-based Slagel Farms, it is all ground in-house and, as Stover so aptly described it himself, has "a nice bit of funk." Indeed, it was so funky, it was worthy of a Clinton, the venerable George Clinton

The barcade trend just keeps rolling. Following gaming bars Emporium, Replay and Headquarters, the latest entry is FTW (for the win, get it?), inside Streeterville movie theater AMC River East. Jacob Fish 25, phlebotomist

What brings you out tonight?

I'm here on a date. Exploring the city and found this movie. We're waiting to see "Poltergeist." It was between that or "Insidious 3."

Are you drinking anything tonight?

Not tonight, but I'm not ashamed to say I like fruity drinks, so something like a margarita.

Board games or video games?

Video games. Board games have their place. They're sweet and simple. Video games are more an amalgamation of art, their storytelling and their visuals.

Arpita Parikh

26, marketing executive

What brings you out tonight?

We saw a movie and wanted to check out the new arcade here.

What did you see?

We saw "Entourage." It wasn't as good as we thought. It was good and I'm a fan of the show, but the movie wasn't as good.

What are you drinking tonight?

I'm not a drinker. I usually drink water or Red Bull if I'm feeling crazy.

Isaiah Grass

22, singer

What brings you out tonight?

I actually came here to see the movie "Spy," and I live right across the street, so this is what I do on Saturdays. I come hang out with my friends, and I couldn't help but come to this arcade.

If you had to wear one item of clothing for the rest of your life, what would it be?

My microphone necklace. It reminds me no matter what I do, I can remember [that] with hard work. I can achieve anything I put my mind to.

Craft beer for a cause

Logan Square bars offer specialty beer to fund monument restoration

By Heather Schroering | REDEYE

I would argue that every craft beer purchased is for a good cause—you're supporting the little guys and, well, beer—but a few Logan Square establishments are offering another motivation to pop by for a pint.

In an effort to raise funds to spruce up the nearly 100-year-old Illinois Centennial Monument, in the community space on Milwaukee and Kedzie avenues and Logan Boulevard, Revolution Brewing and bar and restaurant group Land and Sea Dept. have partnered with nonprofit Logan Square Preservation on a special American wheat ale appropriately named Monument.

Both Revolution's brewpub (2323 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-227-2739) and taproom (3340 N. Kedzie Ave. 773-588-2267) are offering the beer. It also will be on tap within the next few days at 25 other neighborhood bars and restaurants, including Boiler Room, The Chicago Diner, Cole's and Parson's Chicken & Fish.

For every pint sold, $1 will be donated to Logan Square Preservation.

"Logan Square is our home neighborhood—it's where we were born—so it seemed

Monument wheat ale

Revolution brewed 50 kegs of the beer, which is made with white wheat and flaked oats and dry-hopped with Crystal and Centennial hops. It's available on draft only at these participating Logan Square-area bars and restaurants while it lasts:

Analogue • Boiler Room • The Chicago Diner • Cole's • The Double • Dunlays on the Square • El Cid • Go Tavern & Liquors • The Harding Tavern • Logan Arcade • Logan Bar & Grill • Longman & Eagle • Lula Cafe • Madison Public House • Owen & Engine • The Owl • Parson's Chicken & Fish • Parts and Labor • The Radler • Revolution Brewing brewpub • Revolution Brewing taproom • The Rocking Horse • Scofflaw • Sink / Swim • Slippery Slope • SmallBar Logan Square • Weegee's Lounge

very fitting that we could help support the restoration of a historic monument in our neighborhood," Revolution communications specialist Kim Elsham Vavrick said. "It's a centennial monument, and we used Centennial hops. We love a good pun."

The 70-foot-tall column, designed by Washington, D.C., Lincoln Memorial architect Henry Bacon, was dedicated in 1918 for Illinois' 100th birthday.

The funding will go toward masonry repairs and restoration of original benches and the surrounding area.

Legislators OK bill for craft brewery growth

By Josh Noel | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

A bill expected to boost the state's beer production was headed to the governor's desk after passing the Illinois House on June 9.

Barley

The House signed off on the bill 87-20 after the Senate passed it late last month. Gov. Rauner has 60 days to sign, veto or amend the bill from the time it's sent to him.

"We're excited," said John Barley, co-founder of Solemn Oath Brewery and the president of the Illinois Craft Brewers Guild, which negotiated the bill with the Associated Beer Distributors of Illinois.

"We've had no indication from the governor's office that this won't be signed. It's good for beer in Illinois, good for brewers, consumers and the distributorships."

The legislation allows breweries to make up to 120,000 barrels of beer per year—more than most breweries in the state now make—while operating as many as three retail facilities, such as brewpubs or taprooms.

Current law, which has been cobbled together over years of negotiations, limits brewers to 30,000 barrels of annual production if they own multiple types of breweries, and had knocked fast-growing breweries like Revolution Brewing from compliance.

Orange bitters with ingredients
MICHAEL TERCHA/TRIBUNE

The secret to better cocktails: DIY BITTERS

By Laura Levy Shatkin

CHICAGO TRIBUNE

House-made bitters—the liquid in the tiny droppers you spot lined up at any good cocktail bar—do much more than make the guy or gal mixing your drink look like an awesome mad scientist. These tinctures, brews of roots and barks combined with pungent spices like cinnamon, clove or sarsaparilla then steeped in the sort of stiff grain alcohol you probably haven't had since college, are the finishing agents of a balanced cocktail. A scant few drops draw out the other flavors in your drink, transforming it from good to great.

The final and most important ingredient in homemade bitters? Time. Devote a little to this recipe, and wow your friends at your next cocktail party.

Orange spice bitters

Prep: 25 minutes

Rest: 2 weeks

Makes 1 1/3 cups

To find burdock root, visit an Asian grocery store. Variation: To make cherry bitters, omit allspice and cloves and add ¼ cup dried cherries

- 1 cup Everclear
- 1 medium orange
- 4 tablespoons peeled and chopped burdock root
- 1 teaspoon black peppercorns
- 1 tablespoon cardamom seeds
- 1 cinnamon stick
- 1 piece fresh ginger, cut in half (approx. 1½ in.)
- 4 allspice berries
- 4 whole cloves
- 1 tablespoon honey dissolved in 2 teaspoons of hot water

1. Using a vegetable peeler, remove the zest of the orange, leaving pith behind.

2. Combine the zest with the aromatics and herbs in a wide-mouth canning jar. Pour in Everclear, add honey and 1/3 cup of juice from the orange. Cover with a tight-fitting lid and store at room temperature for at least two weeks, giving the jar a good shake every other day.

3. After the steeping process is finished, strain into a clean jar using a coffee filter. Store in an airtight container in a cool, dark place. Use sparingly to add intense flavor to your favorite cocktail.

The sleepest place on earth

Kanye West caught some shut-eye during the "Frozen" sing-along show at his daughter's second-birthday bash at Disneyland. The rapper reportedly slept through the whole 25-minute shindig and was called out, supposedly by a Disney employee, on social media, TMZ reports. North West's birthday bash was decked out with colorful Minnie-inspired decorations, and the family had a private meet-and-greet with the Disney princesses. We're guessing Elsa shot Kanye a few icy glances.

Let's taco 'bout it

The team at Unicode Consortium dropped a set of 37 emoji that includes, wait for it... A TACO! Finally. Though the new emoji has been approved by the Unicode Consortium, it won't necessarily show up on iOS and Android. Let's just hope Apple and Google get the memo and include it in their upcoming updates.

We love Wisconsin!

It'll be a "That '70s Show" reunion on Netflix's new series "The Ranch." Ashton Kutcher and Danny Masterson will star in the comedy about a semi-pro football player who returns home to run the family business with his brother. Deadline reports. The series is set to debut in 2016. We can't wait to see Kelso and Hyde back together again!

THE DIGIT

$24,720

That how much money Britney Spears dropped on pet care in 2014, TMZ reports. Her pooch certainly has been getting the royal treatment, but it's no sweat off Britney's back, as she reportedly raked in close to $14 million last year.

THE QUOTE

"A man tends to go, 'I want this,' and they go out and get it. A girl goes, 'I want this, but do I want this, but how do I get it, but I'm not sure. What do you think?' We have far more of that in a dialogue, that we question our innate sense of confidence."

—Nicole Kidman, to the Associated Press, about her insecurity at the age of 14 when she turned down a part she was offered because it involved kissing another girl

THE QUOTE

"Long distance is always tough, and dealing with that is always an interesting thing, but it's all good. We're both busy and young and enjoying life."

—Nick Jonas, to ABC News, about his recent breakup with Olivia Culpo
